

Local Newspapers.

Seneca Falls Revell.

The editing of a local newspaper is no light task as many are led to believe. The identity and personality of the editor cannot be concealed or avoided—he speaks himself and all his readers know him, and upon him rests the whole responsibility of all he says. Self-respect and an ardent desire to do well and to deserve well at the hands of his subscribers and patrons prompt him to strive constantly in season and out of season so to conduct his journal as to reflect credit upon himself and upon the community in which it is published. The first and most essential thing in the conduct of a country journal is to have it clean. No line or word should be admitted to its columns that might not be repeated in the family circle. In its dealings with men it should be fair and just—if occasion should arise for praise or blame it should be justly meted out. Personal prejudice and bias for good or ill should never control the editorial columns. As a purveyor of news the weekly paper needs much watching and constant scrutiny. To these essentials for the decent conduct of a newspaper must be added the need of the earnest cooperation of the community among whom it circulates and for whose benefit, if properly conducted, it does so much. No class of men know better than editors the bitterness of the want of appreciation and of moral and material support. If people only realize what advantage it is to a town to have a decent, well-conducted paper, they would with one accord tender such encouragement and support as would lighten the editorial burden and lift up the editorial heart. The labor bestowed on a live local journal is very great and it should meet with a generous recognition on the part of all who are interested in the success and prosperity of the place in which it is published.

A Model Ghost Story.

The Ketchumville (Tioga county) correspondent of the Oswego Gazette tells the following story:

"Quite a singular circumstance happened to Mr. Dwight Cady recently, while he was on his way home from North Maine. It was necessary for him to pass by the Ketchumville cemetery, in which some seven or eight years ago, the remains of a man by the name of James Boyle were interred, and those of his wife, also, we believe. It seems Mr. Cady was familiarly acquainted with Mr. Boyles, for he says as he neared the corner in which he was laid to rest, all at once Mr. Boyles appeared immediately before him, not more than two feet distant, and offered his hand. Mr. Cady says he grasped his hand said: 'How do you do, Uncle Jimmy?' to which the dead man responded, 'I am all right; it is all right with me.' Mr. Cady then said: 'How is the old woman?' 'What old woman?' said the dead man. 'Why, your wife, how is she?' 'O, I don't know; I don't know anything about her,' and he disappeared as quietly as he came. Mr. Cady says Uncle Jimmy looked and talked as natural as life itself, and his hand felt warm and just like any live man's hand. He says he didn't feel frightened in the least until Uncle Jimmy disappeared, and then he was never so scared in all his life, and didn't want to be so again. Mr. Cady says he has been praying for the past thirteen years to have the dead appear to him, if they ever did to any one, and now that they have he is satisfied, and he positively affirms that he saw him and calls his friends 'doubting Thomases' when they tell him he must be mistaken. His friends feel considerably worried over it, for they fear it is a presentiment of some coming trouble.

The First American Postage Stamp.

The first postage stamp ever used in this country is believed to have been brought out in New Haven in 1846 by E. A. Mitchell, who was then the postmaster there. Mr. Mitchell, in response to many complaints of inconvenience in paying postage at the delivery windows, as the offices was sometimes closed, and it took time at best, finally got a stamp engraved and printed. These stamps were sold at postage rates, and proved very convenient. Mr. A. E. Lines, an engraver, of New Haven, has found the original design. He had engraved it in 1846, and saved it. The stamping tool was made for use as a cancelling stamp, is used now, and the letters were engraved on brass. Recently Mr. Lines showed his old design to postmaster Sperry, of New Haven, who told him he had been offered $400 for one of the impressions.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.

Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fillers complete. 65 Cents.
Farmer's No. 1, 15 doz. Case with Fillers complete. 55 Cents.
Cardboard Fillers for refilling 20 Cents.
15 per cent. discount on lots of 100 cases.
Batchelder's Egg Tester, 1 string 6 doz. at once, saves to buyers many times its cost each season. Price $3.00.

By special arrangements made by the manufacturers of this case most Railroads will receive them as fourth class freight.

The 15 dozen case made especially for Farmers' use, sent to any address by express, with out nailing, with full directions for setting up, on receipt of 50 cents. Every Farmer and consumer should have one of these cases, it will save its cost every month. Agents wanted in every county. Address,
